Proposal:

A simple planner web application that would help the user keep track of their monthly plans. The user can add, remove, edit entries. The app could also give activity suggestions. A database would be in use to keep track of all this data. On a more advanced level, we could implement a relationship between multiple accounts, where a user could view the planner of another user (ex: parent and an oversea child). Profiles and private messages between users are other possible features.
